Chapter 1 by bleachisanoption

The Prequel:

Long Ago, Avatar Korra fought with Avatar Aang's Dark Spirit. An evil spirit had brought him back, and now controlled him. The spirit had all the abilities Aang did. It could bend all elements just like Korra could, but it had one advantage Korra did not. It could energy bend. This means it had the ability to take away bending or give it. The evil spirit had grabbed Korra, and started the attack. Korra could feel her bending being drained away from her. But when the attack was almost accomplished, she had struck the evil spirit with a fire blast. At this point, all elements were running through the evil spirit. When you energybend, the avatar connects with the spirits, and all elements, and subelements are running through its chi. The spirits give the Avatar a beam of chi, and this gives the Avatar the ability to control the chi of a person, either sending chi from them into the person, or taking the chi away. Without chi, a person cannot bend. But, when Korra had done a fire blast, the spirits chi was at its climax. All the elements were combining together at this point. When the fire struck the chi, the elements were scattered throughout the chi. Now the blue chi, mixed in with the red chi, and green chi, and the white chi did the same, as well as the other two. Now bending was changed.
